

SHAME AND TEARS
THE PRICE OF FAME.

Astounding confessions of a world-famous actress who earns $5,000 a week, but must submit to insult, disgrace and sorrow,

NEW YORK JOURNAL AND ADVERTISER.

CAN SHE REALLY REFORM?

The most notorious woman in New York turns over a new leaf and reveals some amazing incidents of her past life.

NO. 5,401.

Copyright, 1897, by W. R. Hearst.—NEW YORK, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 2, 1897.—16 PAGES.

PRICE ONE CENT In Greater New York; Elsewhere, and Jersey City, TWO CENTS.

SETH LOW NOMINATED IN A SECRET CONCLAVE.

CITIZENS' UNION MEN
BAR FURTHER DELAY.

Seth Low as a Corporal.

When a boy of twelve Seth Low formed a strong attachment for the military, and entering the organization known as the Brooklyn Cadets, he rose to the position of corporal in 1882, when he was twelve years old.

Seth Low was named for Mayor of Greater New York by a divided body of independents, against the wishes of many of his supporters who favored coalition with the Republican machine. The nomination was secretly made by subcommittees of the Citizens' Union, deriving their power to nominate from a parent committee, and not from the voting body of the Union. It must be ratified by the Union itself.

The Brooklyn Committee, led by Mr. Low's counsel,

President Low in His Office at the University.

Seth Low is a well-bred, wealthy descendant of an old Brooklyn family, the president of Columbia University, candidate for Mayor of Greater New York on the Citizens' Union ticket, and a practical politician.

Though born rich he has succeeded, in his forty-seven years of life, in establishing his right to riches. Seth Low was born in Brooklyn on January 18, 1850.

His grandfather, after whom he was named, was the first Mayor of Brooklyn.

His father was Abel Abbott Low, a famous merchant, who advocated the consolidation of New York and Brooklyn when Seth was a little boy.

During the war Seth was captain of a company of cadets in Brooklyn, composed of youths much older than himself.

He graduated from Columbia in 1870, and at once entered the store of his father.

Working from the bottom it took him but five years to win a partnership in the concern on his merits.

Seth Low entered politics in 1877 as a member of the Young Republican Organization. He started in as a worker.

In 1881 a reform wave swept over Brooklyn, and Seth Low was nominated for the office of Mayor by the Republican convention against General H. W. Slocum, the Democratic candidate. He was a compromise candidate.

One of the men who fought his nomination was Jacob Worth, who alleged that Seth Low would not be acceptable to the Germans.

This is the same Worth—now a "boss"—who is advocating the nomination of Low by the Republican convention this year.

In 1883 he was re-elected, and he did not spoil the good impression he made during his first term.

At the close of his second term he went abroad, upon his return devoting himself again to mercantile pursuits.

In the campaign of 1884 Mr. Low, though a Republican, studied a long time as to whether he would vote for Blaine or Cleveland.

It is claimed by his political enemies that he did not make up his mind until after the election was over.

In 1888 Seth Low bolted the Republican ticket to all intents and purposes.

OLCOTT LIKELY TO BE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE.

Senator Platt and the Republican leaders plan to boom District Attorney Olcott for the Mayoralty nomination, with a view of testing public sentiment and detracting from Low's strength. Lieutenant Governor Woodruff left for Albany last night for the purpose, it is said, of talking over with Governor Black the question of his successor in event of his resignation. "A straight Republican or none," is now Platt's battlecry, and Mr. Olcott is just at present regarded with the most favor.

Seth Low as Mayor.

In 1881, when thirty-one years of age, Seth Low was elected Mayor of the city of Brooklyn by a decided majority over ex-Mayor Howell. In this same year he married the daughter of Justice Curtis, of the United States Supreme Court.

LOW SEEMS HAPPY OVER IT.

North East Harbor, Me., Sept. 1.—Mr. Low was in a particularly affable mood at his pretty Summer cottage, on Smolledge's Point, near North East Harbor, last night. Telegraphic notices of his nomination had reached him early in the afternoon, and numerous personal messages of advice and congratulation had followed.

He fairly beamed when asked if he had been notified of the action of the Citizens' Union. "Yes," was his reply, "but only in an informal manner."

"Are you prepared to say to-night whether or not you will accept the nomination?"

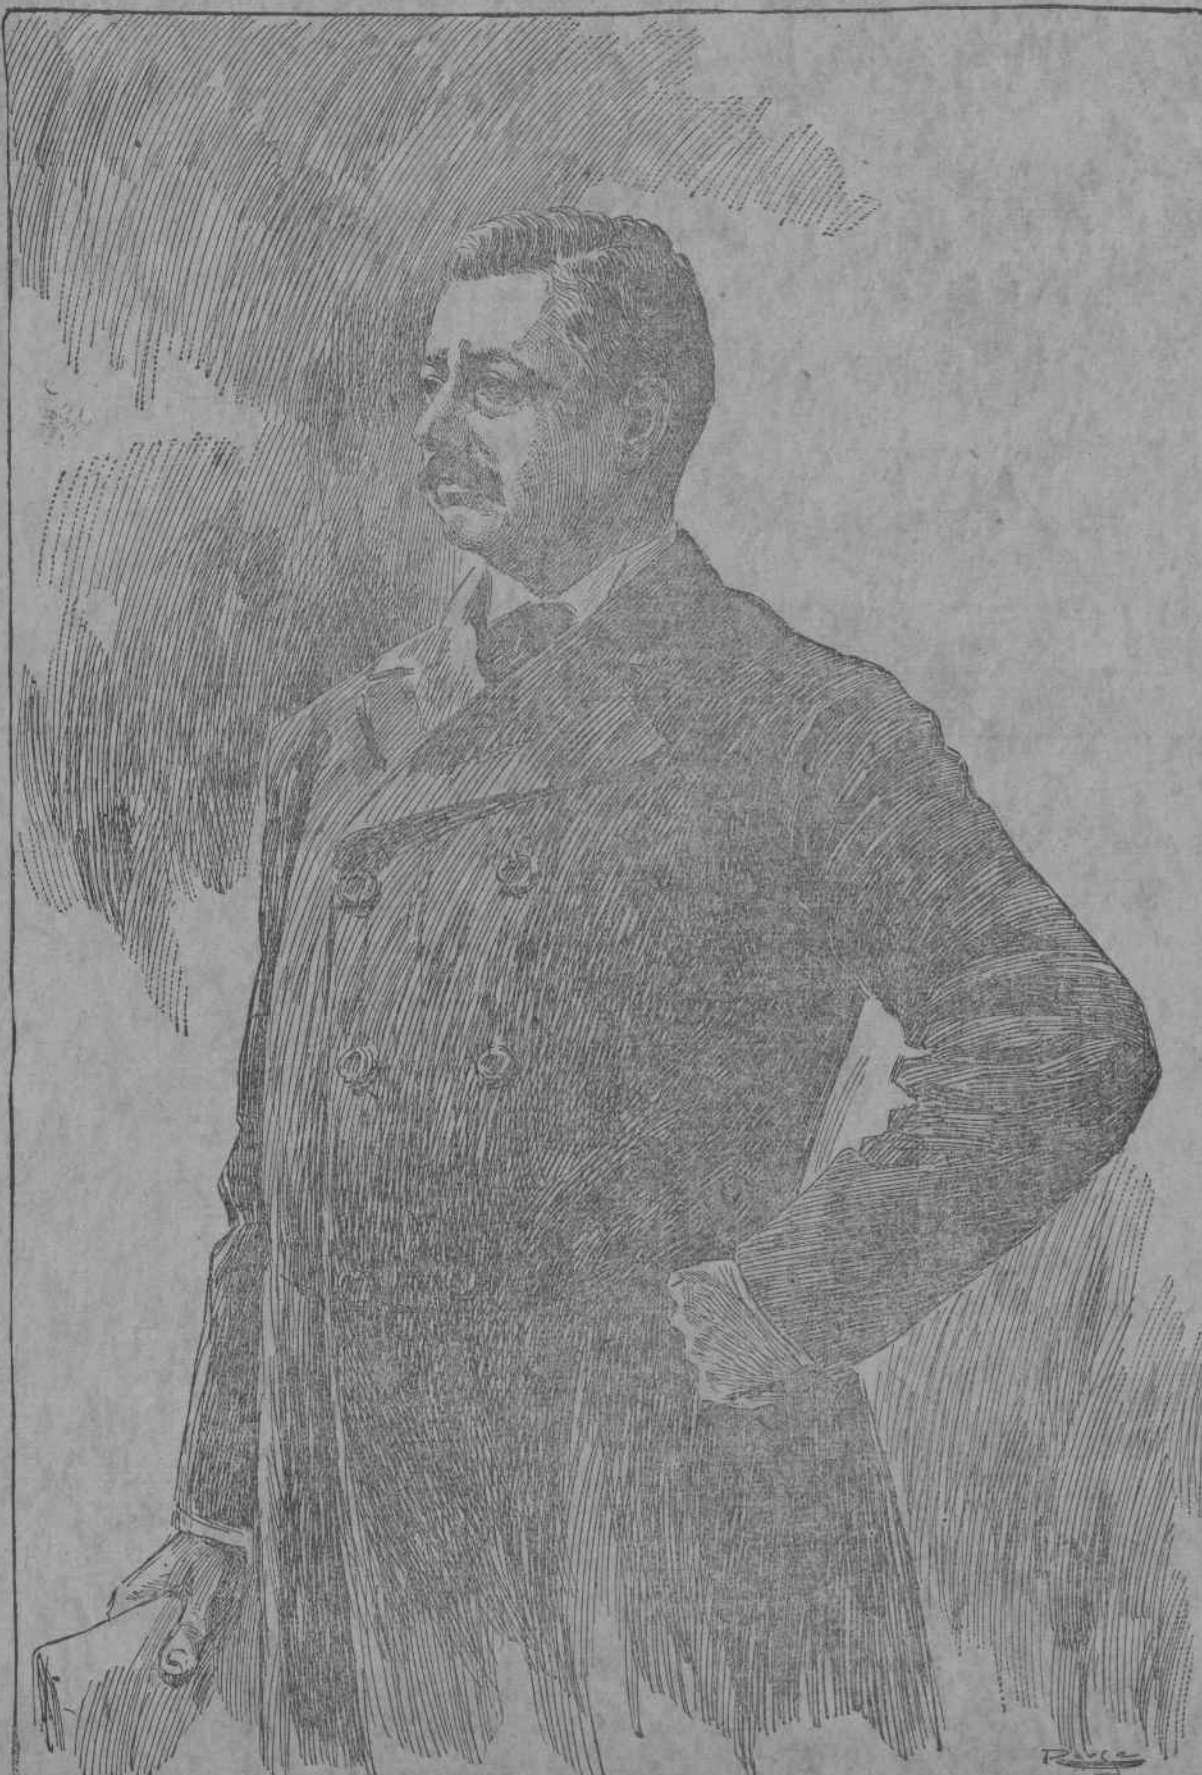

"No. I do not feel that I should make any answer until I have been formally notified," and Mr. Low smiled in a manner which seemed to say, "There can be but one answer."

"You see," he continued, "the formal notification will not reach me until tomorrow or later. I understand that Mr. Clark, the secretary of the Executive Committee of the Citizens' Union, is now on the way here and will probably reach here to-morrow. Possibly I shall not give out my reply then, preferring to wait until it has had time to reach those to whom it is addressed in New York."

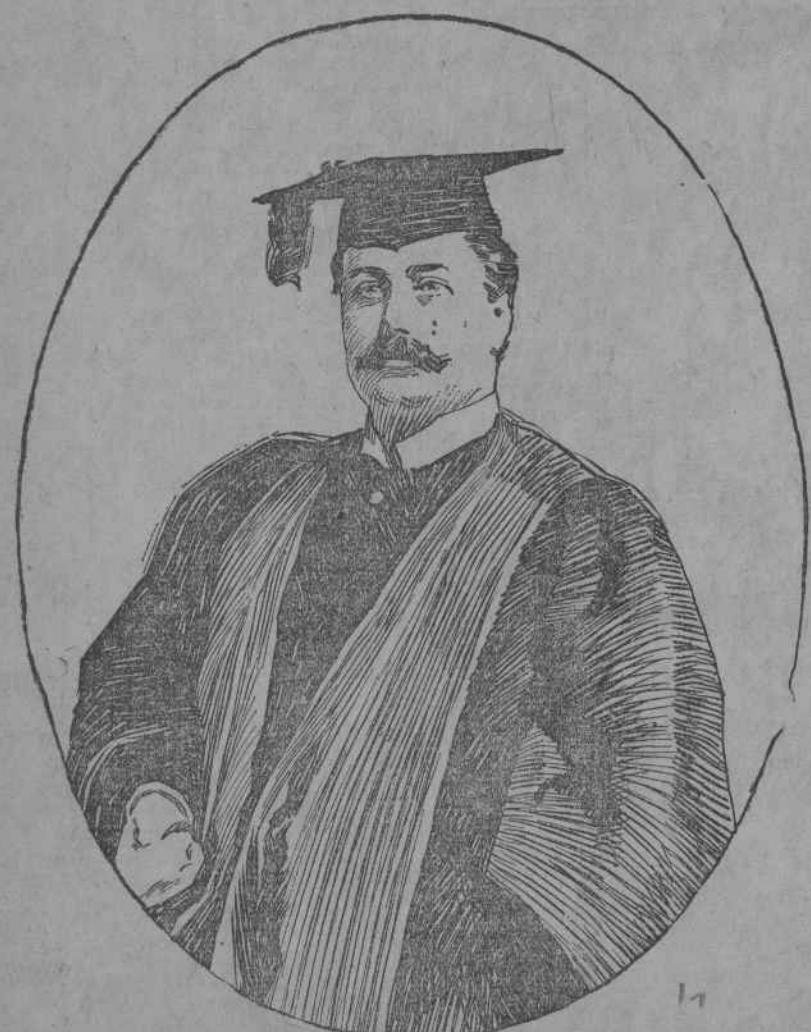

"How long do you expect to remain here?" was asked.

"Until the middle of September. I am now engaged, and have been for some time, making out my college report, and that work will not be completed for about two weeks. I usually remain here until about September 15, and do not contemplate making any change in my plans this season."

Further than this Mr. Low would say nothing on this subject on his own account, but he has been advised by those who are watching his interests in New York to say nothing. But the knowledge that he has been nominated has put him in the best of humor, and the arrival of Mr. Clark to-morrow may mean the formal announcement of his acceptance.

LOW CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR.

As a College President.

In October, 1880, Seth Low, by the unanimous vote of his fellow trustees, was tendered the presidency of Columbia College. He was not quite forty years old at the time, and barely twenty years had elapsed since he had received his diploma.

As a College Student.